

Full Name:	UNM ID:
Email:	Date:

Course Evaluation
NATV 667 Course: Doctoral students must take eighteen (18) credit hours of the required core courses including an additional graduate level methods course, which could include NATV 667-Action Research in Indigenous Communities; or from the approved list (consult with the NAS faculty Graduate Director). NATV 667 serves as one of your required two methodology Ph.D. courses and must focus on methodological tools at the graduate level. A course syllabus must be provided to the NAS Chair and faculty Graduate Director. A graduate level methods course must be approved by the NAS Chair and faculty Graduate Director. For more details, review the Ph.D. handbook. To determine if the course is eligible for graduate level, review the university catalog for more details. Note: If a course is a starred (*) level course and may be taken for graduate credit by students enrolled in a graduate program which may be require extra work. Email materials to Lloyd L. Lee at triplel@unm.edu and Wendy Greyeyes at greyeyes@unm.edu.
Focus Courses: Thirty (30) credit hours must be selected from NAS focus or Interdisciplinary option courses. These courses are chosen through communication with the NAS faculty Graduate Director based on how well the courses complement the student’s doctoral pathway: academic or community oriented/policy researcher. The course must have at least two-thirds of NAS content . Focus courses are approved by the NAS Chair and faculty Graduate Director. For more details, review the Ph.D. or MA handbook. Email materials to Lloyd L. Lee at triplel@unm.edu and Wendy Greyeyes at greyeyes@unm.edu.
Comparable NATV 667 or Focus Course Number and Title:	Department Name:	CRN:	Semester and Year:	Instructor Name and Email:	Note:
Credit Total:
Course evaluation justification by student:
For the methods course, is the course a designated methodology course within the external department. For the focus course, does the course(s) have at least two-thirds of Native American Studies content (readings, lectures/seminars, community visits, and/or assignments)? Explain and be specific using your syllabus and any assignments as your justification.
Approved by Graduate Faculty Director:			Date:
Approved by NAS Chair:			Date:		